

R E N J

WHISPERS OF STARDUST IN THE NIGHT

DIVINE PREMONITION - LOVING YOU - TO IYA - KALEIDOSCOPE SHATTERED -
STRING TOO WEAK (W/ COMMENTARY) - MY MIND AND YOU - PIE - THESE COLORS -
A FEELING I HEAVE - DAYS AND SO ON - LIKE AN ACTIVE SOUL - WITH A HUSH - TO FEEL EMPTY AGAIN

TABLE OF CONTENTS

FOREWORD - 1

DIVINE PREMONITION - 2

LOVING YOU - 3

TO IYA - 4

KALEIDOSCOPE SHATTERED - 5

STRING TOO WEAK (W/ COMMENTARY) - 6

MY MIND AND YOU - 7

PIE - 8

THESE COLORS - 9

A FEELING I HEAVE - 10

DAYS AND SO ON - 11

LIKE AN ACTIVE SOUL - 12

WITH A HUSH - 13

TO FEEL EMPTY AGAIN - 14

FOREWORD

In the hushed hours of the night, when the world is draped in shadow and silence reigns, we find ourselves drawn to memories like moths to a flickering flame. "whispers of stardust in the night" is a collection that carries us back to a bittersweet, rustic memory from the year gone by.

After that moment, nothing remains quite the same. It was as though, at a singular point in time, we managed to coax the stars themselves into whispering secrets in the quiet of the night. These poems are a recollection of that extraordinary encounter, a testament to the magic that exists in the stillness, and a reminder that in those rare moments, we are forever changed.

DIVINE PREMONITION

*It's rare for things like this to happen
We don't know where or when
But by just looking into eyes
You see glimpse of hello and goodbyes*

*You don't need to be a sorcerer
It's just elusive for some other
For some it's easy to find as the Sun
Even seeing its rays when it's gone*

*Yet some are too caught up by it
That they bend to fit the spirit
Trying to realize a fancy fantasy
Til the thought to be love comes to idiocy*

*Yet some people achieve the milestone
And defy the oracles of divine premonition
The eyes that screams meeting prime Both swindled and guided by time*

*A spirit with desire comes tangible
Trying to acquire the unavailable
And try to hold the sand of fate in hands
Time will tell what kind of fate lands*

*For some, the prophecy isn't that clear
They can't see if fate is dear
But like everyone, the soul can touch
And see if they're meant that much*

*But it's a premonition, the bad is seen
It's a war disguised as a lovely scene
Yet people, some over and over, go
Into the battlefield and see the show*

*But for every if, for every happenstance
One is a sure to occur circumstance
You'd only know what it really was,
If you travel to see as you get past*

LOVING YOU

Loving you is a lot to think
At an edge of a pointy brink
Feels unexplainable by a shrink
Like a sail that doesn't sink

No one word, not enough phrases
To wrap all my loving phases
And the tear, sad, joyful faces
I casted as I make the traces

Yet it was fun to play
A game of night and day
A game to reality that I stay
Playing with what we say

One, two, three, to even four
That I said I'd love you more
But loving you can't buy in store
Sometimes, you only see the before

Even from different places we hail
To same places we set sail
Blush rush in a world so pale
Tiptoeing on a balanced scale

Loving you was a ride to die
To die to feel alive to try
To turn gray into blue sky
Trying to tighten a non-existent tie

Loving you was a lot to give
A ton of pieces to sieve
A haunted house I don't want to leave
And when I joy, I prefer to grieve

Loving you is something
I can't explain with everything
But for sure I thought we'd be anything
Til the coin flip reveals nothing

TO IYA

As you leave the woods, to polis divine,
Leave a room for yourself and time
You shall seek yourself in the light.
Get ahead from Sol's blinding shine,
Don't reward hesitation with a dime
Travel as much as you think is right.

The abundance of deep message of query,
Peruse the manuscript you reckon
To be of value to your odyssey.
Pause for nothing but for your necessity,
You shall not let them outshine your beacon
Of incandescence they could never be.

Be the captain of the ship you voyage,
Don't let them touch, sweep, whisk, or sail
Past you so you could stay anchored.
Own the road you travel, own the passage,
They shall never set foot on your holy trail
Without any awareness of what occurred.

And when you reach your destination,
Show them the slits in your discolored sail
Turned around by the winds of fate.
Show them the stars and scars of your mission,
You shall never let them minimize self
And crash your laborious gate.

Don't stop for people like me
Who would only delay your pilgrimage
For I made you think of idiotic admiration.
Don't let me touch your soul, your sea,
For I will only delay the writing of a page
For the journey we both write in expression.

KALEIDOSCOPE SHATTERED

We were in a room with songs in a disc
Loud as the scream of self to fight the risk
As if the lights around us chose to dim
For me to see the contemplation within

I hope I see you in the same place again
And linger there until eternity's end
If not, I cannot picture myself with others
No one spells my name as your letters

We were a a page written in the dark
Yet I longed, and clinged to a split-second spark
Hoping that the warm gets cold, and I'd be more
And wish for you, and do whatever it's for

I hope I can have you with songs and chant
And get over the waters of don't and can't
If not, I cannot see what's other land
No one touches my soul like your hand

We were destined to not be destined
Brighter and lasting as to be gleamed
Yet I trusted throigh the maze of fate
Only to arrive at the same gate

I hope I can bend the lines of existence
And feel the moments than just reminiscence
If not, as the case, fate cannot be bothered
I am slipping and a kaleidoscope shattered

We were the couple hours noe one sees
Overlooked, untamed species of trees
And in extinction we do not matter
For we don't belong since the start of forever

I hope I never lose the picture of your smile
And remember the intricacies of your style
If not, I'll try but I know I will never find Someone like you, someone of your kind

STRING TOO WEAK

*Attached to you like the stars are to the sky
All the queries and the questions of why
The feelings that seem to never die
The answer the heart looks for every cry*

*The story between the hours of being awake
Pushing you off for our own sake
But the path is windy as it is to take
The answers false, and the heavy decisions to make*

*Every song reminds me of you and only you
For some while my ideation comes true
Ending as the last note is through
The grays we can't seem to cover with hue*

*The ears hear every note, every lyric
But my eyes, long for you, wants to seek Trying to reach you like an illegal leak
But we can't, the string is too weak*

I want to listen to some songs the way I did before, to listen to them without thinking of you. But you are an indelible mark in the fabric of my existence. I like to listen to songs that lets me paint a picture in my head and for some reason brush strokes reveal a beautiful portrait of you but everytime the song ends, the strokes spins and becomes a catastrophe, a reminder that we can't be together even if the will is too strong, but no will is stronger than the force of destiny.

MY MIND AND YOU

Sometimes, I still think of you and your hair, and your voice
And it's a moment so true, it transcends through poise

There was a time the sky was you, the stars bow to your name
There was a time the world was you, the trees would bend and tamed

You're a gushing wind in my mind, thought like a free spinning ballerina
You're a name I didn't see from behind like a weakness of the stamina

I should be over the waters now, across the bridge of our troubled waves
Yet you manage to put a glow in the street lamps that clarity leaves

The aftermath hit hard than the storm that ran over my sleepless nights
You took an 'endless thought' form that shook the superiority of lights

Sometimes, the thought of you even a thought of me runs
And question what am I to you and the eerie sound of firing guns

And in every bit, in every corner,
I remember to think of you
Other sounds became out of order because I can only hear you

Someday, my mind will not summon the thought of you
In the end, none is left but the chaos our fates do

PIE

Sorry if I proved to you the world is unfair
We loved each other so much that we were
In a point we forgot to love ourselves
We could run the world, we could fly so far
You were more than just a getaway car
Ripping it off like rogue books in shelves

Don't put everything on your shoulders
For I am the heaviest of the boulders
It's nothing you did, nothing from you
You were more than great, the moon is shy
Of you, know that I loved you wide as the sky
I loved you so much I'm afraid of breaking you

The moment I held you, I embraced everything
But midnight sharp thinking what would it bring
And the archer instead arrowed himself
Don't worry, I know you loved me too
You tell in words and even things you don't do
Sorry that I couldn't give myself help

Heal your wounds, cook a pie, do anything
Mend yourself, let the future sing
Don't hesitate to forget me if you need to
But I will always remember you every night
With all the ghosts that I fight
Sorry for painting black your sky so blue

THESE COLORS

*Red rose blooming like the sun
And when it sets, shines like the stars
Soft as the touch of stardusts gone
Hard as the water of scarce*

*Scarlet perturbations in the sky
And when it fades, rests on me
Bright like how souls could fly
Dark as the shade of a tree*

*Maroon streaks on my heart
And when it beats, it looks upon
Quiet as the kiss of comets apart
Sound as the leaves whooshing undone*

*Rust that shines through waves
And when ashore, it glows
Slow as how a spirit saves
Fast as a herd of fleeing does*

*Then I felt these colors and I think
I may have, I am, I'm not sure
But I loved, unknown like a blink
All I know, you're the one I'd soar for*

A FEELING I HEAVE

A year ago, I fell in love with someone
Someone that you wish would be gone
Someone who seldomly wore a bun
Someone I think I'd never be done

Everytime I think her, it's golden
Like she splashed a life so I could begin
Like a shade of love I have never seen
Like a home that I have never been

Songs fall apart in her presence
But I crumble to pieces in her absence
But I long for for her, losing my sense
But I took her as my central essence

She's a voice you'd never hear anywhere
You'd have also fall if you were there
You'd have feelings you could not bear
You'd have words you cannot spear

I never let her go though she didn't hold me
It's a feeling that I like to be
It's a story I couldn't see
It's a version of her and me that couldn't be

I hear her when I have nothin' to hear
It's like in my mind she is here
It's like an enchantress with nothing to fear
It's like the mysterious genesis of a tear

She built me up, and I toppled myself down
For she's a beauty like no other gown
For she's a surrender that would never frown
For she's a melodic presence of a sound

I fell, and fell out, and now I leave
The gates from I once lived
Bye to you, the I can and cannot give
A year ago, a feeling I heave

DAYS AND SO ON

I know I can't pretend
That I don't love you
It seems to have end
Everything leads to you

And when I talk to me
I talk to a version of you
A version I cannot see
But something I grew

Everytime I miss you,
I miss me too
Everytime you go,
It feels like I should too

Midnights past, to dawn
With rivers between eyelids
Days past, to dusks, and so on Plains growing with seeds

Everytime bronze turns to gold,
You are the rust I'll be Thinking is the only way I could hold
A picture of you and me

You got that look I miss
From the strands of hair
To your thoughts deeper than abyss
And eyes I could only stare

I could only take you home
By singing your name on the way
I could only take you home
By dancing the night away

Even if I say I don't
The voice in me says I do
At times even if it won't
The will screams too

LIKE AN ACTIVE SOUL

I overthink every bit of you
From the laugh to the fury
The hello and goodbye too
As well as offense and sorry

I blew time for a speck
Of a moment with you
Just to be held back
By stars I couldn't glue

And I'm torn between waiting
And leaving a non-existent
Place of wonder-wandering
Torn between the straight and the bent

I like it when you're breaking
My heart for some reason
I like it when you're saying
What you want, what you don't

To a reach where I got To memorize the color of your skirt
To a reach where I have not Been able to see fate's assert

And the fault cracks under my bed
As if the thought you reaches
Deep within the Earth, in my head
Like something invasive that breaches

2AM like an active soul
Longing for a worn out body
Like a one coherent whole
Looking for random parts of a many

I remember the overthoughts
And you sitting on them
Deep within the realms of both
Tearing and seaming the hem

WITH A HUSH

*I thought I'd never feel this
The urge, the wanting to kiss
The craving to live a bliss
Feel something no better than this*

*Thanks for making me yours
Attachment is a repulsive force
Yet you managed to long my cores
And run like a spirited horse*

*Thanks for making me fall
And long for your enchanting call
Voting for you in every poll
Longing for a dance at a ball*

*You managed to wrap me in gold
All the stories were put on hold
The warmth reigned over the cold
Heavenly paradox of a scold*

*I thought I'd never feel the high
The wish to hear you say "hi"
Along the stars, you make me fly
Every night as if I the feeling cannot die*

*Thanks for the path you made
Dominoes of night on a cascade
Lines as jagged as those in an arcade
Skies that never tore into a fade*

*Thanks for the delicate rush
And the rose-embellished blush
Calming the voices with a hush
Turning an ocean into such a lush*

Life would also probably be this good Yet, you're a wish I didn't wish I would Hands to hold, a picture I never could I say thank you for you, as I should

TO FEEL EMPTY AGAIN

*Born with nothing but nothing
Kissed by the bliss of nullification
Hugged by the none of everything
Held by no means of unification*

*Like a puzzle that I never knew existed
Pieces I never knew would fit together
The none was raised, nothing was uplifted
And in the world of fullness, I wander*

*The oasis has grown its trees
Like a mircale from a perspective therein
The desert has come visited by the seas
For thousands of years, it has never been*

*And I feel the gush of rivers, growing crops
Wishing to see the rest of the fields
Excitement flowing as the time drops
Waiting for what the present yields*

*I felt full like an astronaut landing on Earth
The impatience to feel some risk
Looking for arguments I could assert
To run towards you than a windy brisk*

*An October that turned into nights Albums in between, release out there
Sadness of seeing such wonderous sights
And the world feeling like a blank stare*

*Like water in hands, it flows away
But the hands, the water isn't what they've been
The trees, along its leaves sway
I'm never the same, to feel empty again*

*I'm not empty nor full nor in between The levels unsure, the age of the superior
I don't know that it would mean for a queen
But you filled the void I had in store*

R E N J